

With Help From BidHub's Easy-To-Use Online Product, Two Industry Professionals Complete Safety Course

Huntley, Illinois, (May 31, 2006) – BidHub's Online OSHA 10-Hour Construction Industry Outreach Training Program recognizes Jim McNicholas and Frank Le Fever as its first two graduates. This past April, both men took the 10-Hour training program and received completion certificates from the BidHub Corporate Headquarters located in Huntley, IL. McNicholas is from Becmar Sprinkler Systems, Inc. in Crystal Lake, IL and Le Fever works for Phoenix Woodworking Corporation based out of Woodstock, IL.

“Making construction safety education convenient and available for our users was a goal here at BidHub and the addition of this program was another positive step for us,” explained Director of Educational Services, Anne La Francis. One such pleased recent OSHA Training Program graduate, Jim McNicholas, expressed his overall satisfaction with the online course. “The course was very educational, especially in an area where we do not normally work in. It was very flexible and on-time, you didn't have to take off work. Fellow graduate Le Fever added, “Safety is a main concern to managers who care for their employees and although you may think you know a lot about safety in your shop, there is so much more to learn from this course.”

BidHub continues to expand its products and services with this educational edition to their portfolio. It's expected that the company's overall clientele base will surely benefit from this online resource.
